

Thank You So Much For Your Support of Jason's Dream Room Makeover

A Note About Jason...

Jason is 14-years old and battling osteosarcoma which is a bone cancer that is very rare and very aggressive.

We met Jason when the family had just been told that the cancer had metastasized to his lungs and there was nothing more they could do to save his life. The only possible option...an experimental clinical drug which might provide hope. Hope did come for Jason. Please see mom's text to us this past November & Jason in his new room, below!

A Note From Jason's Mom

Hi Shelley,

Jason had his big check-up today and rescan. Jason has improved a lot since his last scan. Hope. His tumors are shrinking and some have disappeared so he may stay on this experimental drug for another 90 days and then see what options might be, such as surgeries. We will know more after his team meets next week and they will consult with UCSF.

There are so many good vibes for Jason in his beautiful room! He spends the majority of his time now in his amazing room that you created for him. I am sure it is helping! Please share this message with your donors and volunteers.

Thank you,
Christie

Here's Jason In His New Dream "Gaming" Bedroom...He Loves It!!!

Jason Wanted A Cozy Gaming Room With Lots of Neon Green...

The Challenge Was He Had 3 Doors and 5 Windows.
So We Needed To Create Some Faux Walls & Why Not Make Them Neon Green!?!

A Note From Shelley Ham

Executive Director, Rooms of Hope

The minute Jason spoke three words to me, I could tell that this was one special young man! After interviewing him, I learned more about his personality and his dreams. Anne and I co-designed his bedroom and we knew that we had to give all the control back to Jason so that he had hope until he could no longer take another breath!

His room became all he could think about! Of course he was a huge part of helping us with the design, but we kept one special part of the design a secret; 7-foot high walls of neon green he could move at will. Jason asked for a gaming room. We learned that from the time he was a small child, he loved changing his room around. Jason never had a room that he felt good in...but that all changed the day that George and Charlie showed up with his neon green walls, shown left/above!

For many of our children, they are battling the unknown. Will they survive? Will they ever get to go back to school? Will their body ever get back to being normal? Will they be able to play the sport they love again? These are all questions that I have personally heard from many children over the years.

Our goal...with your help...to bring hope, joy and love!!! Jason needed all three and so did his single mom. We designed the space to be exactly what he wanted and movable at his whim. He is an engineering type and it brings him great joy to find solutions and then change the environment to better enjoy his surroundings.

What an extreme pleasure it was for our team to work on this project for Jason. If you are inclined to pray, please do so for Jason. If not, please send out good vibes as his mom says. Either way, thank you for being involved with us and helping so many children like Jason. We are all so blessed to be part of this mission! Thank you all so much!!!
